MERLE RAY/ THE NOBLE GROUPS

Merle Ray is best described as a top performer for top performers. More than a coach & consultant, she is a business specialist to for-profit large corporations, small business, non-profits, and churches. While most consultants just talk about business problems, Merle Ray specializes in hands-on services, leadership, and support that solves them.

Merle excelled to leadership within a Texas Medical Center institution, the world's largest medical platform, by starting in the field of human capital management & HR technology before earning her first college degree. While there, she earned "Employee of the Year" and led cultural transformation in a leadership capacity while still a part-time student. She then became a top performing "eHR" Content Management Director in a client services capacity for five years with one of Fortune's Most Admired companies - still before earning her first degree. While there, she earned "Outstanding Employee of the Quarter" and was promoted into leadership within the Sales & Marketing division leading what became known as the company's first successful eBusiness initiative. In 2003, she started Noble Groups, her own firm, out of a desire to serve for-profit businesses, churches, and non-profits in her community. It was then that she became the first college graduate in her family, earning her Bachelor of Science at the age of 40 along with her younger sister. She later earned her Master of Science in Leadership and began work on her PhD.

Merle Ray proves human capital makes dollars and "sense" to the bottom-line. She inspires both employees and leaders. She doesn't believe in wasting time or energy; instead, she measures human efforts on the bottom-line. Giving back to her community, she has provided stronger strategy, learning and performance plans, start-up business and funding strategies to small business owners throughout Houston. For non-profits, she has worked as a paid consultant/coach and donated many hours of pro-bono work by writing more than 23 winning grant proposals totaling over $2.5 million in cash for non-profits clients in their first year. She also volunteered as a federal grant reviewer for the Institute for Youth Development initiatives. Merle has mentored more than (21) women through her identity book-writing initiative and authentic voice campaign. To date, she has published more than 70 books for various authors, and 7 of her own. Outside of life-long learning, she enjoys family, visioning, and achieving goals with friends.
